Image caption The buyer, believed to be a Russian collector, paid 4,750,000 pounds for the deck. The deck, known as the Seraphim, was created in 1928 by artist James B. Quinn and features pictures of people, animals, the Zodiac and the elements. Its value had been placed between 400,000 and 500,000 pounds and was expected to sell for half that sum in one day at a previous auction. A live-streamed bidding war for the deck, initiated by Sotheby's, lasted until shortly after 7am BST, when the buyer's name was revealed as an anonymous Russian collector.
