using Ubuntu 13.10 and I have a Samsung Galaxy S5 running CM12.1. I can connect my phone to my laptop using bluetooth, but there's no file transfer that happens. It just says "connected" in the bluetooth settings. I've tried to connect my phone to another laptop, and it worked. Is it my laptop?

My phone? A: After a long research, here's the solution I found: the Bluetooth is built in the BIOS it's still there, but disabled You can enable it by pressing F2 (also called DEL) at boot.

Rhododendron arborescens Rhododendron arborescens, commonly called the Asian azalea or the blue azalea, is a species of flowering plant in the heath family, native to Mongolia, the eastern Himalaya, and Kashmir. It is a small, compact, deciduous shrub growing to 10 cm high. Small, blue, flat, umbel-like flowers appear on small panicles in spring and summer.
