Whether it's a swimming pool or cross-fit class, a sports activity can rejuvenate both the mind and body; by getting out the house, you're breaking the monotony of working from home, which is often an excuse for spending all day inside. Additionally, activities such as the gym provide a form of social interaction that can be satisfying. Having a fitness routine planned out will at least give you a sense of accomplishment, and might even prove to be a great stress buster. If you can see assets on the asset side of the balance sheet that are suitable for investment or lending, then the portfolio is a good way to build your own initial loan portfolio, without requiring a large loan amount. Granted, you won't see many loans with a face value of $1,000, since most loans that you can get have loan amounts ranging between $50,000 and $200,000. The ability to leverage a loan into multiple loans is something we utilize for our own personal portfolio. Lending Club has a good blog post showing how they calculate the return on an investment:Return on Investment at Lending Club - A Lesson In Simple Math If you've got loans, not interest rate sensitive ones, then you can also view the drop box ("Slack Offered") just below the Your Title box and click "Apply for Loan." This will immediately return you to the dashboard where you can view your portfolio. Over the last few months, we've had some good luck with several borrowers that have given us the opportunity to invest in some pretty strong loan portfolios. We think this is a good portfolio to try out when the portfolio consists of loans with term ranging from 5 years to 360 days. Here's a sample portfolio:
