VW RNS510 v9 Maintenance.A structural component of the influenza virus is a virus-coded protein of normal size and it is an elongated, rod-shaped protein of the order of 60,000 Daltons. This protein contains endogenous carbohydrate (mannose) in a number of its places. Attempts to provide a definitive chemical structure for the elongated protein will be made and in addition to this the physical basis of recognition by a specific cell-surface receptor of the influenza virus will be investigated.
